

JEFF'S NOSE BROKEN; FITZ BADLY BRUISED.

Marks on Both Fighters After the Boiler-Maker Won Show Conclusively that the Story of a "Fake" Bout Is Unfounded.

(Special to The Evening World.)
SAN FRANCISCO, July 26.

An examination made by a surgeon disclosed the fact that Champion Jeffries's nose was broken in his fight with Fitzsimmons. Several of the small bones are badly shattered. His face was also bruised and cut up and the big boiler-maker showed many marks of his successful but desperate battle to retain his title.

Fitzsimmons is in much pain. Jeffries battered the lanky Australian's body with his terrific punches with great effect. At first it was thought that some of Fitz's ribs were broken, but a close examination by the surgeon proved them intact. But Fitzsimmons's sides and chest are bruised, discolored and swollen so that he breathes with keen pain. He will be some time recovering from the effects of the battle.

This is further evidence that the story of fake fight is absolutely absurd.

Referee Grady says: "I think the contest was legitimate. From a referee's standpoint the fight was as near perfect as a fight could be. There were no fouls—not even the semblance of a foul. I had to caution them once, but this was not for anything that either did to the other, but for their bumping into me. It was the greatest fight I ever saw, and I doubt if there will ever be another like it."

"It is absolutely ridiculous to talk of the fight being a fake," said William Delaney. "There never was a fight in which there was less reason to doubt that it was being fought on the square."

NO FAKE, SAY JEFF AND FITZ.
Jeffries said: "Of course the fight was on the square. It is ridiculous to talk of anything else. Fitzsimmons fought a hard fight, the gamest I ever saw. He worked hard all the time, and when I got in the deciding blow on him he was taken off his guard. After I had my eye out Delaney told me to start in and finish him, for fear that I would be blinded and would be unable to keep on fighting."

Fitzsimmons is equally emphatic in his assertion that it was a hard fought, legitimate battle.

RICH SOUTHERN WOMAN ELOPES.

Mrs. J. W. Stafford, with Her $50,000 and Young J. E. Hardin, Arrives Here.

When the Old Dominion steamer Jefferson, from Norfolk, came to her pier at the foot of Beach street this afternoon a young man, dressed in the height of fashion, rushed down the gangplank and was immediately seized by a crowd of attorneys and acquaintances. Following him closely was a woman, probably forty years old, hysterical from excitement. She was crying:
"Oh, don't leave me! They are going to kidnap him. Ernest, don't forsake me now. I know they are going to take him. Don't, Ernest, and we'll go to England and be married."

Outside of the pier was a carriage, but the young man would not enter it to be kidnapped, as the excited woman expected he would be.
He was J. Ernest Hardin, twenty-five years old, superintendent of the Revolution station Mills at Greensboro, N. C., and a son of one of the old aristocratic Southern families.

She was Mrs. J. W. Stafford, wife of the principal hotel-keeper of Greensboro, and besides her handsome clothes she had $50,000 in cash or negotiable securities—all her own.

Met by Family Lawyer.
Among those who met Hardin was Attorney Campbell, of the firm of Campbell and King, who had been retained by the family to endeavor to have the young man return to his home. With him were several of the northern members of the family. They had a carriage and expected to take the romantic young man away to a place of safety.

But he heard the entreaties of Mrs. Stafford, and he said to Mr. Campbell and the others:
"No, I will remain with her. I love her and will go through hell fire to show her my devotion."

Arrested in Norfolk.
The couple were arrested at Norfolk yesterday on a charge of eloping, but as the charge was not sufficient in Virginia both were released, and they boarded the Jefferson before other warrants could be secured for their arrest.

Word comes from Mr. Stafford that he and Mrs. Stafford would sail for England by the first steamer and would there be married.
Word comes from Mr. Stafford that he considers his wife as of no relation to him and that as a legal matter he will ask for a divorce.

GOLD HEELS WINS THE BRIGHTON CUP

Sunshower Comes in Second and Surmise Takes Third Place.

BRIGHTON BEACH RACE TRACK, July 26.—The Brighton Cup and the Leopardstown Steeplechase were the stake fixtures at Brighton this afternoon, but they could not be called features.

In fact they were lacking in interest for the reason that both had poor fields.

"Gold Heels will win, bar accident," was what The Evening World's turf expert wrote to-day in speculating on the chances of the great four-year-old winning the Brighton Cup Handicap.

Gold Heels did win and easily. Getting off to a good start the suburban winner led all the way through the long journey of two and a half miles and won pulled to a walk. Gold Heels was 1 to 15 in the betting and thousands of dollars were wagered even at those prohibitive odds.

The confidence shown in the great horse in the betting was fully justified. He went to the post in fine fettle—as fine as skilled hands could make him. When he flashed across the finish a winner by eight lengths he was greeted with a salvo of cheers from the thousands gathered at the track by the sea.

Sunshower, which finished second, was also selected as a contender for the place by The Evening World man. After the race it was observed that Gold Heels walked slightly lame. His trainer said, however, that the winner would recover after a brief rest.

The Leopardstown Steeplechase was a walkover for Rising Sun.

The attendance was large, for it was Saturday and the regular half-holiday attendance put in an appearance as usual.

"Wild Bill" Donovan Pitched for the Brooklynites and "Iron Man" McGinnity, the Former Hanlon- ite, Filled the Box for New Yorkers.

(Special to The Evening World.)
WASHINGTON PARK, BROOKLYN, July 26.—The Brooklyn Rapid Transit sought to declare a dividend after its business to-day and Ned Hanlon, the leader of the Dodgers' team, and Johnny McGraw, the constructor of the Giants, sought to get full commissions. Opening day, when invitations are as numerous as pleasure-seekers at Coney Island on a warm Sunday, never attracted such a throng as did to-day's meeting between the Giants and Dodgers.

Their three previous meetings showed McGraw to have a real good team, and this was a day when they had their chance. Half-holiday was in order, and by the looks of things the seashore and country resorts must have been deserted. There seemed no end to the lines which formed up to the box-office.

Hundreds sought the opportunity to exchange good silver for a yellow pasteboard. That was at 2:30 o'clock and still they came in greater numbers as the time for the game approached. The stands were all filled and it was almost sure that standing room would be at a premium when the game began. And all this with the gloomy weather which prevailed all day. Surely New York is baseball wild, and Johnny McGraw is the cause of it all.

12,000 Cheer and Yell.

Well when 12,000 baseball rosters assemble at a ground, it is no children's party. Dodger fans could compare with the din of yells and cheers which rent the air. The rosters roared hard and long. Every fine play was appreciated and the fair folk who went to see the game just because somebody told them, and knew nothing of the technique, had a fine time because they saw that everybody else was having one.

They were, too, for another pitcher's battle was in view. Johnny McGraw chose the ex-member of Hanlon's team in this instance. Joe McGinnity, to work for the Giants in the box, and those who remembered the "Iron Man's" performance of a week ago expected sure victory for the New Yorkers. But the Brooklyn fans also had a mighty man in whom to place their faith. He was Bill Donovan, sometimes called "Wild," but that was a mistake to-day. So the game began, and simultaneously with the umpire's call to "play ball" 12,000 voices broke in loud acclaim.

First Inning.

It must have been a Brooklyn crowd, for when Jones fanned the brawny stands shook with the cheers accorded Bill Donovan. When Farrell pulled down McGraw's foul fly more cheers followed. A Donovan inshoot caught McMahon on the arm and he walked to first. Brodie lifted a foul and Farrell got it. No runs.

Shackel's second baseman wild when he rapped the ball to right for two bases. Motchinsky caught Keeler's hot liner. Brockway hit a safe one, and started for third only to prove a victim of a double play at second. Dolan dropped a safety over Twiler's head. Dahien couldn't hit McGinnity's curves. No runs.

Second Inning.

The crowd had now given so big that time had to be called to allow the spectators to form around the field. A rule had to be made that any hit into the crowd was good for only two bases. About 15,000 people were then on hand. Farrell made the next put-out of the game by catching Lander's foul lift. Smith drove a safety past McGraw, but failed in trying to steal second. Dunn was called out on strikes and the umpire was the rightful recipient of no runs.

Lander's catch of Farrell's foul brought the crowd to its feet. Billy got a hit from a foot on the stand. McGraw got a base on his knock and reached second when Jones let the hit slide from him. Irwin smote the ball mightily, getting two bases and sending McGraw home. Flood was hit at second, but McGraw dropped a safety over Twiler's head. Dahien couldn't hit McGinnity's curves. No runs.

Third Inning.
Breenham bounced the ball to Dahien and was an easy out at first. Flood got McGinnity's bouncer and sent it to first in time. Jones's high fly hit John. No runs.
Dolan's fly back of second dropped safe and was caught by Twiler. Dahien's little pop up. Dolan tried to
